The Journal of the International Federation of Clinical Chemistry and Laboratory Medicine

eJIFCC Vol 28 n 1

Recent Advances in Pediatric Laboratory Medicine

eJIFCC Vol 28, n°1 is now available. It focuses on Recent Advances in Pediatric Laboratory Medicine (PLM). Guest-editor is Prof. Delvin, Dept of Biochemistry and CHU Sainte-Justine Research Center, University of Montreal, Canada. The PLM' dedicated articles highlight how Clinical laboratories' efficacy in assisting physicians in their diagnostic and follow-up endeavours is linked to availability of dependable analytical methods and reliable reference values. Paediatrics is particularly sensitive to this problem as rapid developmental changes associated with child growth, can impose rapid discontinuous changes on the physiology of individuals. The issue also features a Case Report on Congenital hyperinsulinism and a Letter to the Editor on hemochromatosis, erythrocytosis and the JAK2 p.V617F mutation.
